We are moving miracles, walking creators engaging in a cosmic dance. The art we express is timeless.” –Mohammed Sheriff “The arts matter because they help us see the world from different perspectives. They give us empathy and help us understand people, places, periods of history, and issues with which we may otherwise be unfamiliar ...

Why The Arts Matter | NEA

Philosophy of art - Philosophy of art - Art as expression: The view that “art is imitation (representation)” has not only been challenged, it has been moribund in at least some of the arts since the 19th century. It was subsequently replaced by the theory that art is expression. Instead of reflecting states of the external world, art is held to reflect the inner state of the artist.

The definition for art that I have come up with, which seems to work best for me, is that anything anyone calls art is art. This comes from my belief that there is nothing intrinsic about art. We cannot do a chemical analysis to determine if something is art or not.

Why We Make Art | Greater Good

The public realm refers to publicly-owned streets, parks and rights-of-way, which is where buildings are situated. Architecture clearly meets this definition. All of us, as the public, interact with architecture. We are affected on a practical and emotional level by both the way a building appears in its context and by its interior environment.

The Importance of Art in Daily Life - Fine Art Photography

The definition of art has been debated for centuries among philosophers. "What is art?" is the most basic question in the philosophy of aesthetics, which really means, "How do we determine what is defined as art?" This implies two subtexts: the essential nature of art, and its social importance (or lack of it).

What Is the Definition of Art? - ThoughtCo

Art is about beauty. If we divorce art from its cultural implications, we can agree that art is very often all to do with the expression of beauty. Throughout history, much artwork was made for no ...

Why Do Humans Make Art? | Psychology Today

If we do not have access to a museum, we can still experience reproductions—books, postcards, posters, television, film—in solitude, though the work lacks immediacy. We must, therefore, make an imaginative leap (visualizing texture and dimension) if reproduction is our only possible access to art.
